Core Elements

STUDENTS LEARN to become more comfortable with their authentic self. The focus is on the personal gifts and strengths of each participant building self-esteem and self-confidence. Personal values are identified and participants develop a greater awareness of feelings.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS

and active listening are at the core. Activities, and other experiential exercises bring emphasis to body wisdom not just head learning.

BUILDING A TEAM, learning how to work in relation to another person and leaning into each other to create teamwork are skills enhanced by challenge-based experiential activities.

STUDENTS LEAD from their whole self, in relation to community. They will create and be in service of something larger than themselves. Participants are challenged to integrate all that they have learned, get into action and take it out into the world.

Program Delivery

This program is offered in a variety of forms – throughout an academic year, as a 3 day intensive, and as individual segments integrated with other training. Designed for young people committed to action and change in their lives.

An important aspect of The New Leader philosophy is the creation of on-going mentoring and coaching relationships with students and the global leadership community.
